DANVILLE ROAD REPAIRED

No Longer Necessary to Make Detour; Road Washouts Many

The Danville road which was badly washed out by the terrific showers of the past week has been repaired and the long detour over the Pumpkin Hill road to reach St. Johnsbury is no longer necessary. A small temporary bridge has been erected over the washed out section near the underpass and it is thought a cement culvert will be put in.

Reports of washouts on many roads in the storm zone around St. Johnsbury are numerous and in some instances the waterfalls were little less than an cloud burst. Crèvecœur a number of feet deep were washed out on some roads while in other instances, whole sides of the highway have been washed over adjacent banks.
